

All about Caroline!

Who am I?

Hi! My name is Caroline and I work as an Assistant Educational Psychologist at Swindon Borough Council. I love reading, baking, and spending time with my friends. People describe me as kind and friendly. I look forward to meeting you soon 😊

What do I do?

Assistant Educational Psychologists work with lots of young people to help them achieve their goals and feel more comfortable in school. I do this by speaking to you and the important adults in your life to see how we can support you.

What is important to me?

When working with me, the most important thing is that you feel listened to and respected. I want to make sure you have the right tools to help you achieve your goals so you can get as much out of your education as possible. It's important to me that you feel heard and part of decisions made about your education.

What to expect when you meet me:

When I first meet you, I might come and see you at school. We might play some games or do some colouring! I will want to get to know you and hear about all the things you enjoy as well as things you may find tricky or not like doing. We will talk about how we might work together and what works best for you.

You may also see me talking to some of your adults in school or your grown-ups you live with, this is so I can understand more about you and how we can work as a team to support you!
